

Young Investigator/AHP Award (YIA)

Young Investigator/AHP Award (YIA)

The ESPGHAN Annual Meeting Young Investigator Award/AHP (YIA) is intended to support expenses for Young Investigators (including AHP, Trainees, Scientists and non ESPGHAN members) who have had an abstract accepted for presentation at the ESPGHAN Annual Meeting.

Applications for the Young Investigator Award must be submitted during the abstract submission process. Individuals who do not apply for the Young Investigator Award during the abstract submission process will not be considered for the award. We are unable to accept applications after the abstract submission period has closed and the blind review has been completed.

Those who apply for the Young Investigator Award during the abstract submission process will be notified of their status after the blind review and abstract allocations has been completed, about a week prior to the early bird registration deadline.

Please click the button below to submit an abstract and apply for the Young Investigator award. Details on the application process, eligibility criteria and required documents are available on the ESPGHAN website awards page. Click Here to Submit